Airangel moves into Sharks' den

Guinness Premiership rugby union side Sale Sharks has signed a deal with Airangel to provide WiFi internet services at its Edgeley Park base.

Warrington-based Airangel has designed and installed a branded internet portal for both staff and guests of the club. All meeting rooms, conference spaces and bars are now WiFi-enabled allowing staff and clients to work remotely throughout the stadium.

The club said that the network can be used by conference organisers, corporate guests and supporters alike.

Airangel has also further extended its partnership with the club by joining the Sale Sharks' 500 Club as a top tier sponsor for the 2009/10 Season.

"We have seen a surge in enquiries from sports clubs of all types and sizes as they are continuing to diversify their offerings," said Airangel sales director Dean Wilkinson. "Using ground space for meetings and events can prove lucrative and WiFi is an essential facility that businesses require."
