

A career with direction

Who we are

Airangel Limited is a global provider of guest Internet access to the hospitality, corporate and sporting markets, providing services across 3 continents. We create value for our customers by designing and developing innovative, differentiated guest Internet solutions that fit around their needs and objectives.

Join our team

Airangel has an opening for an experienced Network Sales Engineer, based in the North West, though this role would involve traveling throughout Northern England and Scotland.

The Network Sales Engineer will be primarily responsible for supporting new business opportunities and assisting the Commercial Sales team in surveying and creating network schematics.

Candidate profile

The candidate should have extensive IT/data networking experience and will have spent several years in the data communications sector, ideally with a focus on the selling of technology to the hospitality sector.

Specifically, the candidate should have strong knowledge of multiple vendor WIFI technologies for indoor and outdoor wireless standards with site survey and installation experience. In addition, a strong foundation in routing, switching and security will be very advantageous.

The candidate should have confidence in customer facing presentation skills, as a core part of the role will entail securing new sales in partnership with ongoing account management.

Core skills

- Solid networking background
- Copper & fiber infrastructure planning and practical deployment
- Routing & firewall configuration & WAN troubleshooting
- Switching infrastructure configuration & installation (including complex 802.1q VLANN & Trunking)
- Wireless Surveying & deployment experience (taking Interference identification, channel planning, mesh into account)
- Practical experience of the configuration of a wide range of vendor hardware (e.g. Cisco, HP/Colubris, ZyXEL, Proxim).
- Excellent communication skills

What we offer

An unlimited opportunity for professional growth and development make Airangel a great place to work. The remuneration package will be open to negotiation, based on the experience and capability of the candidate.
